

Job Description

Brief Description of Assignment:

Located in southern Beijing, Daimler R&D China is responsible for localizing Mercedes-Benz passenger cars, like A-Class, C-Class, E-class, GLA, GLB and GLC. Our team is part of Daimler R&D China and responsible for Electric and Electronics functions integration of localized Mercedes-Benz vehicle models. Our target is to maintain the highest Mercedes-Benz quality standard and make sure our product can fulfill all the Chinese specific requirements.

In this specific task, you will be working in a project mainly for testing and validation of E/E functions,

Responsibilities:

- Maintain the operational work during E/E testing, including Telematics Infotainment & Driver Assistant System & EE-Comfort system
- Support on test schedule and coordinate the test drive in details
- Prepare test drive and test activities to assist project engineer
- In case of any issue found, support in the activities of issue documentation, measurement data download and communicate with responsible engineers for further trouble-shooting
- Use diagnosis tools for basic analysis and data read-out

- Coordinate with other department colleagues for any necessary tasks
- Search new car launching information and new technology investigation from internet and share within the team
- Daily work assistance and documentation support within the team

Qualification Requirement:

- University student in electrics and electronics engineering, automotive or mechanical engineering
- Experience in automobile industry would be plus
- Solid knowledge of using diagnosis tools and equipment for trouble shooting
- High affinity to the use of different features in the vehicle
- Good level of written and spoken English is essential
- Strong interpersonal and communication skills, which able to work in a multi-cultural environment
- Duration: 6 months